Character Formation

Valor's motto is Sapientia per Admirationem (Wisdom through Wonder) — we believe that every student has a desire for knowledge and is drawn to what is good and beautiful. We introduce students to the depth and richness of the world and appeal to their natural sense of wonder. Ultimately, our aim is to help students become fully alive and truly free. Valor's vibrant school culture filled with joy, respect, and deep engagement is the foundation for our students' academic achievements.

Valor's classical curriculum has been designed to restore the full range of human education to students and features a robust course of study in the humanities, the sciences, and the arts. During their time at Valor all students will experience a diversity of coursework, including craftsmanship, civics, public speaking, community service, and nature studies. Our emphasis on Socratic teaching develops students who participate actively and take a high degree of responsibility for their own education.

INTEGRATED HUMANITIES PROGRAM

The keystone of Valor's high school curriculum, the Integrated Humanities Program (IHP), is a four-year sequence that combines discussion of the greatest authors such as Homer, Plato, Aquinas, and Shakespeare, with the study of Western history and culture from ancient Greece through modernity. The heart of the course is daily seminar discussion, which prioritizes careful reading, thinking, listening, and speaking. Students develop public speaking skills through quarterly panel presentations and the annual IHP Symposium. Ultimately, IHP cultivates a philosophic and poetic spirit in our graduates, preparing them to participate in a more humane civic discourse.

THE HUMAN ENCOUNTER

The Human Encounter program combines regular service opportunities with readings and discussions to allow students to see the meaning and importance of serving their community. The program includes service to the homeless, elderly, and intellectually disabled populations as well as sustainable farms around Austin.

WILDERNESS EXPEDITIONS

Valor students participate in two wilderness expeditions during high school. In the backcountry, free from the distractions often present in our contemporary life, students awaken to a deepened sense of wonder at the natural world. These experiences afford our students special opportunities to build lasting friendship and class solidarity.

SENIOR CAPSTONE

As the culmination of the Valor education, the senior capstone project directs students to integrate their understanding of the philosophical, literary, and artistic movements within the Western tradition. Over the course of the year, students prepare a written thesis and oral presentation in which they reflect on one aspect of the tradition and write about its meaning in contemporary society.

While the Valor schools have an excellent curriculum and a strong faculty, I am most impressed by the carefully crafted culture—marked by joy, respect, and wonder—that shapes the daily life of Valor students. The Valor culture allows students to flourish in beautiful ways, and this in turn leads them to great academic achievement.”
